Many prayers and thoughts for the family as you all go through this very shocking time of grieving. Tara was a beautiful person inside and out and loved all those she came in contact with. She will be very missed but never forgotten. Tara and I have become very close and I considered a sister to me, her family has become my family. I will keep her son and the rest of family in my daily prayers and will be in contact. I love you all!

Garry and family, you all are in my thoughts and prayers during this time of grievance. Tara was a kind soul, loving friend and free spirit. For as long as I have known her, we have formed that sister bond that will be unbroken, and it saddens me to see her go. I will be praying for you all and know that I will still care and love you just as much. If you need anything please feel free to reach out to me.

Me, Tara and Ashley Bradfield Sifuentes always called ourselves the "Three Amigos". We ran together and use to do everything together, before Tara got married. Years passed and things changed, but our love for each other never did. The last time I text with Tara was on December 6, 2016. At the end of our conversation, I congratulated her on how one of the Three Amigos "finally got the formula right" – hence her getting married and finding the love of her life. She ended her text to me with, "Miss ya, Toots." I miss her more than she'll ever know. I love you, Tara, now and forever. And there's a big hole in the middle of my heart with you missing. Rest in heaven, my dear friend, and save a seat for me and Ashley. Much love, Tasha Compton
