I'm sure it was a mistake that your beautiful painting of the "African Woman" wound up on the curb with the rest of the garbage. Rest easy, Don – that beautiful painting is hanging on the wall in my bedroom where she'll be admired as she should be.

In reading Jean's obituary, I did observe an omission of family member. Jean is also survived by her step son, Toby Poyntet. Oversight by the family, I'm sure.

Jean was my big sister and I was always her little brother the artist. We had a special bond throughout our lives sharing special interests of every nature. She was such a beautiful person both physically and spiritually. Losing her has created a void in my life that cannot be described or filled. I will love her till the day I die! I know all her children, grandchildren and great grandchildren and many friends will express the same emotions because she was such a loving person to each and everyone of them.
