I worked for the Dallas Clearinghouse for 4 summers while attending college at Arlington State College (UTA). At that time Gary Jones was the executive director and Roy Lee was in charge of bank clearing every day at 8 am, 11am, and 2 pm. He was so capable, professional, and adept at seeing all of these proceedings ran smoothly. This was a time before computers and the Dallas banks hauled checks to be cleared in huge rolling suitcases. I knew Roy over the expanse of those 4 summers as the relief for people going on two-week vacations. I was able to experience many of the challenges involved in the operations involved in the banking system in Dallas. Roy was the glue that held this very complicated system together. He was so proud of his family! In the midst of the stress of managing the office and the "file girls," he was always calm and patient. I knew that one day he would take over as Executive Director when Mr. Jones retired. He was a valued member of the business community of Dallas, his family, and everyone he encountered in his life well lived.
