My dear Vic, I've tried to find you several times over the years, am saddened that my search ended this way. Hope you found Peace, and that we'll meet again someday. I'm glad you were there with me during those dark days. I always think of you when we go to Posada's, it used to be that really cool Chinese food place where we got that fried bird nest, insert smiley face here. Love, Val

Victor, I wish we would've never lost contact before I moved back to Chicago. You were like the older brother I never had. I'll never forget all the good times we had hanging out at your mom's or playing tennis in Richardson. Most of all, I'll never forget how sincere and thoughtful you were. Thanks for bailing me out of jail when I got arrested for that unpaid ticket. Thanks for reviewing my writings while I was attending college. There are so many things I want to thank you for. I wish we could've spent more time together before I left. I regret having that argument with you towards the end of our friendship. Little did I know I would never see you again and I did not expect to find out about your passing over the Internet when trying to track you down. You'll always be remembered and loved. Love your brother from another mother, Angelo
