In days long past I remember so well the beginning till now, how our friendship began with a tiny friendly smile in the dentist office. It was like a little flower that slowly grew. It was like a little bud on a small green stem, which was watched over carefully. It was watered and nurtured and began to bring forth a beautiful flower. It took root and sprang up through all these years. Although we became many miles apart I still sit and think about you as a beautiful flower in my garden of friends.
