Dad, it's 2 months away from your 6th anniversary of your passing and so much has happened. I miss the times we talked about things and the crazy times we always seemed to have throwing papers. I miss you more today than words could express. I hear a song that we used to sings on Saturdays and miss you even more. I miss you in the early morning hours on my way to work remembering those early mornings of folding papers. Now that I am a grand parent it saddens me to think that he won't have the opportunity that your granddaughter had to know you and your crazy sense of humor, however...Dad... He totally has your half smile even at only 4 months old. I love you Dad and miss you everyday!. Linda Campbell-Cleven

Mushie My brother and I weathered some interesting times together in our lives and as you know he was the remaining foundation of our family's heritage. Only you and Mike can remember all the good times we four shared and what this missing link means to me and my family. Mike's stories and yarns have been more of a part of our daily lives and discussions on subjects that wouldn't mean anything to someone else, yet Mike and I lived through these times and it was memorable. Mike's loss can not be summed up in a few words when it took a life time to create. Mike will live within my family for years to come and the stories he generated will also live as long. Sandy and I will always love Mike and Mushie for what they have shared with us. Our respect and love Terry, Sandy, Robert, Chris & Theresa Houston, Texas

Dear Army, Shanna, Jerry Linda and Mike I'm so sorry for your loss. I really enjoyed being around mike. He was very funny and I loved to hear his stories. The last time we really got to talk was for along time just he and I in the living room at the birthday party for Curtis and Shanna at Jim and Joyce Thrash's house. He talked about his life and things he was thankful for and how much he loved you guys. Even though he was in pain he expressed how grateful he was shanna and Curtis had found each other again and were married and comfortable he would take good care of her and how much respect he had for curtis. I think he felt a bond because they both were in the military and fought in a war thru very difficult times. I was very touched by all his words and wished we had more time to get to know each other. He knew what his future held and I told him Steve and I would take Shanna under our wing and love her as our own and do whatever we could to help out Army and he said thanks. He then smiled and with those beautiful blue eyes he said something funny and we moved on. He will be missed Whitney Thrash
