Christopher was like a second dad to me growing up. From the moment I met him, he welcomed me into the Songer family with his goofy charm and his way of making everyone feel at home. He was always the loudest, happiest presence in the room — a true people person who loved bringing joy to others. One of my favorite memories is when he took Hannah and me to a Stars game in Dallas. He bought us both hockey pucks, and I still have mine to this day. That gift wasn't just a souvenir — it was a reflection of who he was. He always gave the fullest experience, making sure the people around him got to live in the moment and have fun, no matter what. His love for music also shined through Hannah, and it's clear she carries that same passion he had. I'll always remember him as a creative, giving, and loving father — and I'm grateful I got to be part of his circle. Sending all my love to the Songer family.
