“ In the brief time that I knew Anita, she was always kind and joyful. Her hundred-watt smile was irresistible. Always demur and humble, she still had surprises up her sleeves, like the Christmas that she sat down at Jacob's drum set and tapped out some complicated beats, and when questioned, adding casually, "Oh, I played in my high school marching band." You were such a treasure and will be missed.

“ In the brief time I have known Anita, I have seen her show kindness and caring to all of her grandchildren and children. Her hundred-watt smile was irresistible. Always, demur, yet she still had a few surprises up her sleeves, like the Christmas that she sat down at Jacob's new drum set and tapped out some complex beats, adding casually, "Oh I used to play in the marching band in high school."
