“ My hero and one of my biggest supporters. I think about you all the time. I miss you more than you could ever know Grandpa. Thank you so much for everything you taught me and shared with me. You were the greatest grandpa a girl could ever ask for. I carry you with me in my heart. With all my love.

“ What an engaging man! Whether he was sharing a story, or listening to one, Mr. Lincoln was fully invested in the conversation. I can remember helping Susan and Kim pack up their apartment on the weekend of college graduation and Mr. Lincoln advising them to stop and take time to reflect on things while they packed. Was it corny? Yes. But it was also precious and sweet and wise. He truly appreciated that life is a beautiful journey.

Later in life, we would go several years in between visits, and those visits would be short and often in crowded rooms where we both were seeing lots of other people. But Mr. Lincoln always greeted me warmly and seemed to instantly recognize that it was me, greeting me by name and, each time, asking- sincerely asking- how was I doing.

He will be missed. He created a wonderful family and created wonderful memories for all of them.
