“ Joyce was a dear friend of mine that I met while I attended Calvary Hill Baptist Church in 2003-2005. We maintained our friendship through the years and enjoyed visiting, and going out to eat together. We became closer friends after her husband passed away and I went through a terrible divorce. We found comfort in each other's company and shared our love of Christ and just enjoyed each others friendship. Joyce was a prayer warrior as well and a great teacher of the Word of God. A wonderful artist and I have the privilege of owning one of her water color paintings that she made for me while we were on a ladies retreat at the Blue Barn in Alba, Texas. She managed to get away and paint some ducks sunning by a beautiful flower pot in the spring time of the year. Many times we would get her portfolios out and thumb through all the beautiful masterpieces she had painted. She would say they were not very good, but she was just being humble. I remember going to an art studio where her work was displayed and admired by all. I will miss my friend, but know that she is in Heaven with our Heavenly Father now. All is well with my soul.
