“ I knew Kevin when we were at BYU together in the 70’s. We lived in the same apartment complex and he was my best friend for 2 years. He taught me much and gave me advice and spiritual help. Sometimes we would go to campus together in his VW beetle and other times to the movies or to get something to eat. We had a little group of friends from different areas of town. On Sunday evening we would go to an informal fireside for young adults who were troubled or “lost”. Kevin would speak up giving them things to think about which might help. We all sat on the floor and enjoyed the meeting. Afterwards we would talk in our small group for hours. Each of us looked up to Kevin and his spiritual insights. the time I spent with him was invaluable— just plutonic friends, but very good friends— I treasure all the experiences we had and the wealth of knowledge he taught me.
